Phillips resigns from EMC board for personal reasons

By Charles Duncan

The man who started the petition ballot revolution on the Blue Ridge Mountain EMC Board of Directors in 2014 has resigned.

Steven Phillips, a representative from Towns County and the vice chairman of the BRMEMC Board of Directors, has tendered his resignation from the board for personal reasons, BRMEMC Chair Mickey Cummings said Friday.

"This board is what it is today because of Steven Phillips," Cummings said. "Steven simply stated that he was resigning for personal reasons, and he did not elaborate on that."

Director Ray Cook will replace Phillips as chair of the EMC's policy committee in the interim, Cummings said.

Phillips bested Incumbent Julie Payne with 69.1 percent of the vote to Payne's 28.1 percent in the September 2014 election at BRMEMC's annual meeting.

"This election meant everything to me," Phillips said after he learned he had been elected to the board of directors. "I think it's time for change, and obviously so did the membership."

Phillips, former House District 8 State Rep. Charles Jenkins, and North Carolina forester Chris Logan, all three petitioned candidates in 2014, each ousted an incumbent to earn a seat on the BRMEMC board of directors.

A year later, the petition trend continued as three more petition candidates emerged

Staff Writer

In the early morning hours of Wednesday, July 19, a masked man broke into the Dunkin' Donuts on Brackett's Way in Blairsville.

The crime was caught on the store's surveillance cameras, and the burglar got away with an undisclosed amount of money.

Only the Dunkin' Donuts side of the building, which is adjoined to a Marathon convenience store, was burglarized.

Now, the Blairsville Police Department is asking the public for help in cracking the case.

"There's somebody out there. There's somebody out there."

BOE to accept millage rollback rate as property values increase

By Shawn Jarrard

Staff Writer

The Union County Board of Education voted in its July 18 regular meeting to set the 2017 tentative school millage rate at the rollback rate of 11.780.

The 2017 rate is down slightly from the 2016 rate, which was 11.787 mills, though due to an increase in existing property values and added property since the 2016 tax digest, the schools will be bringing in roughly $213,000 more in tax revenues this year over last year.

Under last year's millage rate of 11.787 mills, the schools projected to collect $14,205,828 in 2016 property taxes. Accepting the rollback rate of 11.780 mills will bring in $14,418,723.24 in net taxes levied this year toward the system's FY18 budget, or roughly $213,000 more in tax monies in 2017 than in 2016.

Again, this additional tax revenue for the schools comes from property gains made within the county, as existing real property values have gone up by about $750,000, and the county has experienced a net gain of about $18 million in property values since 2016.

Thanks to relatively stable property values in recent years, which have seen an increase this year and last year, the school millage rate has either decreased or stayed the same since at least 2011.

"As you look at the data that we've provided," said Union County Schools Superintendent Dr. Fred Rayfield to the board in that July 18 meeting, "it's the first time in a while that we've had a good increase in the digest, which puts us in a positive position so that we might be able to recommend a millage rate to you that is a rollback from the rate that we are currently under."

Final adoption of the 2017 school millage rate is slated for the Tuesday, Aug. 15, regular meeting at the Union County Board of Education office at 7 p.m.

Also in the July 18 meeting, Dr. Rayfield recognized students in the UCHS STEM program who came in First Place in the 9/10 Written portion of the TEAMS Competition at the Technology Student Association's National Conference in Orlando, Florida, in June.

STEM stands for Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics, and the high school's STEM Academy is headed up by UCHS Science Department head Alecia Frizzell.

"During this competition," explained

Frizzell after the meeting, "students had to write a scientific essay that displayed their scientific knowledge, complete a problem-solving challenge, solve engineering mathematics problems, and present a professional presentation on technological solutions for environmental problems."

TEAMS, another acronym, means Tests of Engineering Aptitude.
