Gowder fired, Kelley hired as CEO at UGH

By Charles Duncan

Lewis Kelley has been named CEO of Union General Hospital, Patsy Efir, board chair of Union General Inc. said on Friday.

The hiring of Kelley on Friday, March 4, by the Union General Inc. Board of Directors resulted in the termination of CEO Mike Gowder following his indictment and subsequent arrest for drug trafficking in North Carolina, according to Efir.

"You can't have two CEOs," Efir said. "Mike Gowder was still CEO, while Lewis Kelley was the interim CEO."

"Lewis Kelley is now the CEO of Union General Hospital, not the interim CEO,"

Efir said. "Painfully, we had to move on."

Kelley has most recently served as interim CEO, and previously as administrator at Chatuge Regional Hospital, and has more than two decades of experience in the Union General/Chatuge health care system.

Kelley, working closely with the leadership and board of Union General Inc., has been in charge of operations of both hospitals and all related medical facilities since Feb. 5, the day following the arrest of then hospital CEO Mike Gowder.

Kelley's focus has been maintaining business as usual, communicating with hospital employees and the community, and assuring the high quality of care standards.

"We are pleased to have Lewis' steady hands on the wheel, as well as his deep knowledge of our facilities, this community and region," said Efir.

"Our primary responsibility as stewards of this hospital and its related facilities are to ensure continuing operations, and maintain the high quality of care," Board Vice Chair Jim Williams said.

Gowder was placed on paid administrative leave by the Union General Inc. board at the time of his arrest on drug charges in Union County in early February.

Dr. James Heaton, then a member of the Union General Inc. Board of Directors, was suspended from that board at the time of his arrest on drug charges in Union County in early February.

Gowder was charged in Union County with three counts of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance, and one count of conspiracy; Heaton was charged with 40 counts of unauthorized distribution and dispensation of controlled substances, and one count of conspiracy.

Dr. Heaton, also indicted in North Carolina for drug trafficking, no longer is affiliated with the Union General medical staff, and no longer is a member of the Union General Hospital Inc. Board of Directors, Efir said.

Furthermore, Dr. David Gowder, a former board member at Union General Hospital, is no longer associated with the Union General medical staff, Efir said.

Dr. David Gowder also was arrested in Union County on Feb. 4 on 36 counts of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance, and seven counts of unauthorized distribution and dispensation of controlled substances, Union County Jail records show.

Last year's April arrest of Dr. David Gowder in Blue Ridge for fraudulently obtaining prescription drugs sparked an investigation by the Union County Sheriff's Office, which led to the involvement of the United States Drug Enforcement Administration, as well as law enforcement agencies in three states, including Georgia, according to the Union County Sheriff's Office.

This investigation led to the arrests of both Mike and David Gowder, Dr. James Heaton, as well as three additional members of the Gowder family in Union County.

Murphy, NC - Former Union General Hospital CEO Mike Gowder and former Blairsville physician Dr. James Heaton have been indicted by a Cherokee County, NC, grand jury, both for five counts of trafficking in Opium or Heroin, and five counts of obtaining a controlled substance by forgery, according to Cherokee County, NC, Sheriff Derrick Palmer.

Gowder and Dr. Heaton were arrested Wednesday, March 2, Sheriff Palmer said.

Gowder is free on $500,000 bond; Dr. Heaton was still in custody (at press time), his bond set at $500,000 also, Sheriff Palmer said.

Both are required to appear at an April 4th Superior Court hearing in Cherokee County, NC, Superior Court, Sheriff Palmer said.

Gowder was placed on paid administrative leave at the time of his arrest in early February by the Union General Inc. Board of Directors, and his employment was terminated a month to the day later on March 4. Heaton, a member of the board of directors at the time of his Union County arrest, was suspended from that board.

Both now are no longer associated with Union General Hospital in any capacity.

The board hired Lewis Kelley as the CEO of both Union General Hospital and Chatuge Regional Hospital, said Board Chair Patsy Efir.

Gowder was charged in Union County with three counts of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance, one count of conspiracy; Dr. Heaton was charged with 40 counts of unauthorized distribution and dispensation of controlled substances, one count of conspiracy.

Also charged in Union County, Mike Gowder's brother David Gowder, on 36 counts of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance, seven counts of unauthorized distribution and dispensation of controlled substances; his wife Gail Gowder, two counts of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance; his niece, Jamie Harkins, two counts of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance, one count of conspiracy; his sister, Virginia Harkins, on two counts of fraudulently obtaining a controlled substance, one count of conspiracy.

Sheriff Palmer wanted to thank the North Carolina State Bureau of Investigations Drug Division Unit, the Union County Sheriff's Office, and the United States Drug Enforcement Administration for partnering with the Cherokee County, NC, Sheriff's Office on this investigation.

Union County Sheriff Mack Mason said that the investigation remains ongoing, and that he's proud of being able to partner with so many agencies during the course of this continuing investigation.

The Blairsville-Union County Chamber of Commerce Board of Directors has hired Regina Allison as the new chamber president and CEO, following a brief yet extensive search to fill the position.

Set to begin her new role on March 16, Allison will be taking over for Patrick Malone, who assumed the interim post after longtime Chamber President Cindy Williams departed for the Cartersville-Bartow County Chamber of Commerce in January.

The board looked at more than 60 initial candidates before narrowing the selection down and conducting 16 in-person interviews, then following up with four more in-depth interviews.

And such due diligence has paid off in the hire of Allison to serve as the new face of the chamber.

"I am so honored and humbled to have been chosen for this position," said Allison. "I would like to thank the Chamber Board Search Committee for entrusting me in this role. I am grateful for the opportunity to serve our community in this capacity. Our family loves Union County, and we are proud to call this our home."

A long-standing member of the community for going on 19 years, Allison has worked in a variety of business-oriented capacities, and has raised her two boys in Blairsville and Union County alongside her husband, House District 8 State Toward the end of February, beginning of March each year, Leonard Hedrick eagerly awaits the return of his beloved Purple Martins.

"When they're flying around the nest, they make the prettiest little sound, they do," said Hedrick. "It seems like they're having the best time, the sounds they make. There's no other sound like that from any other bird."

For more than a decade, Hedrick has supplied housing for the little birds, which are particular about where they make their nests. And for more than a decade, generation after generation of martins have returned home to roost.

"Once they start coming, they will come every year from there on," said Hedrick, who loves to sit outside and watch the cheerful-sounding birds as they arrive for breeding season.
